

SEEN, HEARD AND TOLD

BY THE EDITOR

We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.—Acts 4:20

Dear Albert Clark: sorry we did not get to take the exfolatory trip thru the pint-size boat Monday, as planned, but I went "down home" Sunday to the vets hospital in Jackson. Let's go Monday.

I went to Jackson alright, and stayed until Tuesday, but did not stay at "home" in 30, but nearby in 42 which was mighty nice just the same. They were mighty nice to me always. I think the doctor was Dr. Deese who is in the upper echelon of doctors there, but is temporarily looking after the ward while the regular ward doctor is off somewhere. I am not going to quote the good doctor, or attempt to do so, but, on leaving Tuesday, his advice to me could be somewhat thus interpreted: be your age; keep on your regular program of living; don't try to live (or fish) like you would if you were 21 years old etc. I am not going back on Dr. Hays or Dr. Boggan, in Ward 30, but I do like Dr. Deese, the way he talks and the way he acts, and I hope I have his name right.

I am putting in this issue what the Times-Picayune said about me, also the picture they took of me, this week. All humans like to see their names in print. I am human.

Before I start rambling off about the vets hospital in Jackson and other irrelevant matters, I had better chronicle that J. Hayden (Radio) Wells from Arkansas was here over the weekend, but did not get to be a piscatorial partner of Banker Henry Ray this trip.

And, before I get on something else, I had better say that I heard that my old and very dear friend, Dr. Squire and Fisherman Frank Smith was confined to the hospital in Greenwood.

It looks like the stork has been flying around a good deal lately; in fact, I just looked out the window and saw where he had been dropping his wings.

It looks to me that the gdrerepublicans are bewildered and don't seem to know where to go, or when.

While I was away, Jim Rose and his daughter, Mrs. Brooks Wallace of Coldwater, were in to pay their renewals and that reminded me that, out on the lake where I fish sometimes, somebody pointed out to me where the Rose family (probably Jim's father or grandfather) settled. There is a lot of Roses now. You know how folks multiply.

Say, boys, it takes more than wishful thinking to prepare for the many things needed to be done at the wildlife reservation. It will take building and digging, and that takes money. The league has forms, copy printed elsewhere, where a member can pay HIS part on the "exterior plan", a minimum of five dollars a month. The MAIN thing is to start the money trickling in. Read the contract. Lay your installment on the line. Don't wait!

The local Wildlife League, in my first organization to seek to prepare to capitalize on the presence here of Grenada Lake. The league has many members, yet many members are awful slow in signing-up for the clubhouse, channel, well and other things useful in the up-to-date club house contemplated. Get busy. Lay your signature and money on the line. Don't wait!

When you sign it, and don't wait, mail it to Waring Taylor or Frank Evans, enclosing a minimum of five dollars.

Here is another Branscome added to our list. Guy Branscome Jr., a vet student at Auburn, Ala. Welcome, old boy, may you learn a heap.

Eddie Nored and Historian Will Ed Branscome got right on the mailing list while I was hospitalized in Jackson.

Orman Kimbrough did too.

And so did Rose Weir.

And so did Mrs. J. L. Milner.

Right before me are three "releases", one from the United States Steel Corporation, a statistical report about war saving bonds and a bulletin about Mississippi Cotton. If we used such as this, we would not have to write a line. You should see how

BULLDOGS DEFEAT HOUSTON 34-14

To Journey To West Point This Week

(By Hugh Ketchum)

Coming back strong after a sluggish first half, the Grenada Bulldogs unleashed a smooth running attack to crush the Houston Hilltoppers, 34 to 13, in a Little Ten Conference battle which opened the home season Friday night. It was the second win of the year for the Bulldogs and the first loss for the visitors.

The first half of the battle was a defensive stand-off for both teams, although Grenada did count early in the game with a "gift" touchdown when Adolph Davis tried a pass from behind his goal after Jake Gibbs had punted out of bounds on the Houston two. Shafer Spence intercepted Davis' pass on the 15 and crossed the goal line untouched.

Ray Freeman started the fireworks in the second half with a 74-yard touchdown jaunt on the first scrimmage play after the kick-off. The Hilltoppers came back to score, taking a short punt at the Grenada 40 and driving across in seven plays. Davis did the scoring from the one.

Houston kicked off to the Bulldogs and Bill Raper took the ball at the 18 and almost broke loose, going 38 yards to the Houston 46. Three plays later he stepped his way through the Hilltoppers secondary for 32 yards and a touchdown. On the last play of the third period Jake Gibbs entered the act with a 36-yard runback of an intercepted pass to the Houston 19. A 15-yard penalty moved the ball to the four, and on the first play of the final period Gibbs crashed over for the score.

The Bulldogs kicked off following the touchdown and on third down John Goza pounced on a Houston fumble at the 28. Gibbs made 11. Buddy Lott picked up seven on his first ball carrying effort. A penalty moved the ball to the one then Lott pushed it over for the tally. Bulldog reserves took over and Houston registered another touchdown in the late stages of the game, aided by three 13-yard penalties. Davis also scored the second Houston touchdown.

Grenada players were: Ends, Bailey Branscome, Harper, Brasfield; Tackles, Waldrop, Ferrill, Moore; Guards, Gray, Carroll Whitten, Cutler, Quinn Centers, Forbes, Lawrence; Quarterbacks, Goza, J. Vance; Halfbacks, S. Spence, Raper, Gibbs, Lott, Douglass Fullbacks, Freeman, Martin.

This week the Bulldogs journey to West Point for an important Little Ten battle. West Point is ranked No. 2 in the conference, and lost by only one point to the favored Starkville Yellow Jackets last week. A loss to Grenada this week would eliminate the Clay County team from conference contention while it would boost the Bulldog chances.

For Mrs. Lula Ingram

It has been a pleasure knowing you these few years. And I enjoyed every minute I spent with you. I couldn't have been with a better woman anywhere than you are.

You are really a nice woman. I have learned to love and respect you since you have been living in this part of the country. And I don't guess anyone will miss you any more than I do. Sure did hate to see you leave but there is a calling for everybody and I hope you make a success in what you have started out to do and I believe you will. If (maama) can raise a daughter to be the sweet girl that she is and to be the good nurse the ones she has nursed say she is, is bound to make a good nurse herself because if hadn't been for you she wouldn't be a graduate nurse today. I know you have helped her get where she is today and I know you are proud of her in fact you have raised two fine girls. I want you to know how I feel toward you and always will have a deep respect for you as long as I live. I think you deserve everything I have said about you and more. Wasn't much, but enough to let you know I love you very much.

SEEN, HEARD & TOLD BY THE EDITOR

We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.—Acts 4:18.

Mabel and I missed fishing Friday, as she was off at some Episcopal to do at Rose Hill, but we went out about the Lonesome Pine Saturday afternoon and caught only some stupid little catfish and stupid little crappie, none of which were big enough to keep. We also caught some stupid little Speck Davis bass.

When Mabel and I went to see that picture where 6 red headed boys married those pretty gals at the picture show one night last week, Bert Bays looked on me as if I were indeed the prodigal son returned. As a matter of fact, television and fishing have about preempted the time I used to devote to the picture show. I DID see the picture, Duel In The Sun, where Jennifer Jones played that off-color gal in the Texas ranch country.

As a matter of fact, pictures DO present the subject much better than do television, but television, like anything else, becomes a "habit".

Old No. 8 to the east is a community asset and, if it is practicable to save it, it should be saved by the county even if, as is true, old No. 8 actually BELONGS to the government. Just "throwing away" that highway just don't make sense, as many fishermen as there are.

Lamar Sledge in the Kemper Co. Messenger had a learned article about a hippopotamus, was called down about his spelling, but got by this way: he was talking about hippopotamus, not the Webster animal, hippopotamus, that, as a matter of fact the animal he was referring to had longer teeth than did the Webster-spelled animal.

I can see one thing that the supervisors should pool their equipment and "save old No. 8". I can see also that Ben Sanders should fix that bridge leading, by way of Odd Fellows, to the Negro settlement to the west.

Not too long ago, I had a letter from Dr. Frank Thomason who is dentist at Parchman. He is Jim Thomason's oldest son and one of "Miss Rosa's" numerous grandsons and, from what I hear of him, is a darn fine young man.

Randy Holladay of Winona dropped in recently and paid his dues. I am looking for Elmer Green most any day now.

I am looking, also for Albert Guy to walk across the street from Doak's.

The gallon-size Supervisor, Albert

Clark, of the pint-size bank, Beat 2, paid his dues sady. I want to commend Albert for many things, particularly for his advocacy of "saving old No. 8". It is a damned shame to lose that wonderful highway, so fine and convenient for use of the many fishermen, both from the east and the west, when a comparatively little work can save this highway, or

A really fast coffeemaker that automatically brews nine cups of coffee in nine minutes. The coffeemaker features two thermostatically controlled heating elements; one of 350 watts and the other 650 watts. Both elements operate for fast pre-heating of the water and then the 650-watt element automatically cuts off. When the device is operating, water pumped up the valve and tube is deflected by a plastic spreader in the lid which forces it downward through the coffee. After the coffee is brewed, the 350-watt element cycles on and off to maintain the coffee at serving temperature.

Electric serving dish is designed in two parts—as ceramic casserole, and separate electric base. Designated "Serv-it" the casserole has a two quart capacity and a stainless steel cover. The base is broomed steel and contains a 25 watt simmer-heating element to keep food hot while serving. The appliance can be used for heating soups, etc.

the FEW low spots in it, from certain destruction. If the Calhoun County supervisors and the Grenada County supervisors would put their heads together and their hearts in the work, the low places could be rip-rapped or otherwise treated so that this fine concrete highway could be saved indefinitely. Albert Clark is "all in" for something to be done about old No. 8 and such a cause should enlist the active work and co-operation of all fishermen, both from Grenada and Calhoun.

PRIVATE CAPITAL

key to economic growth

The movement into Mississippi of new business enterprises, financed by private capital, has been the key to the state's phenomenal economic growth over the past decade.

The oil industry is one of the most significant of these private enterprise groups whose activities and expenditures are contributing heavily to Mississippi progress. GULF, producer of more than one-fifth of the state's crude oil output, is proud to have had a part in the constructive work of Mississippi's oil industry.

The thousands of American investors who own GULF have spent, through the company's exploration, drilling, production and pipe line operations, $120 million in Mississippi. As these operations earn a return on the private capital invested, they add momentum to the expansion of Mississippi's economy.

Private capital creates jobs and payrolls, pays taxes . . . it improves the economic condition of every Mississippian. Investment of GULF capital is indeed a "good sign for Mississippi."

Living Witness

Lesson for September 26, 1954

"AGAINST the Stream" is the title of a recent book by Karl Barth. The title means to suggest that Christian living has to be against the stream of a great deal of what the world thinks and admires. Many people think that Christian faith simply helps a man to do better what the world wants to do. Men want success, money, power, prestige, and "being a Christian" helps one to get these things faster. No, that is not it. When Christ comes into a life, that life will not have the same aims as before. The Christian does not swim with the world-stream, only faster. He has to swim upstream.

Redeeming the World

What a Christian is and does, is determined both by the kind of world we see around us, and the kind of God we have above us and in us. If it were a different world, or a different God, our tasks would not be different. As we look at the world, we can see two facts about it which are pretty unpleasant, but true. Poets and policemen know these things are true, even if a lot of us try to dodge the facts. One is: the world is flat and tasteless, especially (strange as it may seem) to the very persons who try their hardest to "get a kick" out of life. The other is: the world is decadent, which is a polite word for rotten. (The Bible word is corrupt, which means the same thing.) In such a world Christians are called on to be different. Jesus' words about salt and light will always be remembered by Christians. They are expected to give taste and zest to a stale world; to keep a rotting world from decaying entirely. As light, they are to bring to the world what sunlight does to dark cold places. Christians are to share in God's work of redeeming the world, just by being different from the world, not merely different, like sand in the soup, but savingly different, like salt.

'God's Attack on Man'

A crank-sided philosopher once called Christianity God's "attack on man." That is both a long way from the truth, and close to it, depending on how you take it. It is a long way from the truth that God so loved the world that he gave his only Son; a long way from the prophet's saying that God desires not the death of the wicked, but rather that he shall turn from his way and live (Ezekiel 33:11). Christianity is all that happens when God comes to the rescue of man. On the other hand, there is something in man that God does have to attack. When a swimmer starts to drown, and the life-saver goes in after him, one of the first things the life-saver may have to do is to knock the fellow out. A drowning man will fight his rescuer and sometimes only a knock-out will save him. Now the world, that is to say the world outside of God, is a hostile world. It carries on a kind of war against God. It does not ask for help. It is proud, self-satisfied. It always associates God with what is unpleasant or cruel, such as death or disaster. God does have to attack man's pride, his self-satisfaction, his mental slandering of God himself. God does not need to be reconciled to man, but man does need to be reconciled to God. So the business of the Christian is to give testimony to this. As Paul puts it, the Christian is an ambassador for Christ, a messenger of reconciliation.

When Love Controls

So the Christian is expected to be a living witness, both in what he is and in what he says. Could a real Christian be perfectly content with being "saved" himself, without worrying over other people in the least? If ever there had been a generation of such self-centered "Christians," our religion would have died out. One thing is certain: as a witness, no one is convincing if his attitude to his lost contemporaries is one of scorn. The effective witness, in word or in life, comes from the heart moved by the same compassion that only Jesus fully had, and only he can inspire. The growing Christians, the contagious Christians, the witnessing Christians, have always been those who could say as Paul did: The love of Christ controls us.

This water purifying device which uses ultraviolet irradiation is smaller than an electric toaster and can be attached permanently or temporarily to any supply of tap water. It may also be filled by hand wherever pipes are not available.

By exposing water to the ultraviolet irradiation of a General Electric 4-watt germicidal lamp, the water becomes purified. The unit is made with white enamel finish, aluminum, stainless steel and other non-corrosive materials. It sells for about $60.00.

The right atmosphere in your dining room is as important to the success of a meal as the food you serve. Add zest and interest to everyday meals as well as those for guests by varying the lighting in your dining room.

The newest type of ceiling fixture, designed especially for dining rooms, gives you a choice of light to blend with your mood.

When you want lots of light for family dinners, or for games around the dining table, these attractive fixtures flood the ceiling with light while a special spotlight installed in the center spotlights the table.

When you want a more dramatic setting, you can use the spotlight alone to add highlights and sparkle to your table.

This type of fixture may be wired on two separate circuits so that upward and downward lighting may be controlled separately. However, for older homes where you have only one circuit there are also fixtures of this type in which the center spotlight is operated manually by pulling an inconspicuous chain located in the center of the fixture. A long-handled hook bar enables one to reach the chain easily.

World's Largest Light Bulb
General Electric announced here today that it had developed and produced the world's largest and most impressive artificial light source.

A 75,000-watt incandescent lamp bulb, it is half again as large as the previous largest bulb. It was developed as a feature of G. E.'s observance this year of the 75th birthday of Edison's most famous invention.

The bulb was conceived, designed and assembled by G-E lamp development scientists and engineers at Nela Park, headquarters of G. E.'s lamp division. Its glass bulb, largest ever made, was hand blown by the Corning Glass Co., first producer of bulbs for Edison.

for it. It may be used in recipes calling for tomato paste or puree, such as tomato sauces or tomato aspic. The research that resulted in the powder was prompted by the need of the armed forces for a tomato product that would take little storage or shipping space, would keep in different climates without refrigeration and would be easy to use for tomato juice or tomato-flavored dishes.

A plant is now being built to produce orange juice and grapefruit juice powder. Research is underway on juice powders from prunes, apples and pineapple.

Spring Flowers

It's time to plan for your spring flowers, or early spring blooms, plant larkspur, annual phlox, California poppy, cornflower (ragged robbin), coreopsis and gallardia.

September and October are also the months to plant bulbs as hyacinths, lilies, narcissus, iris, and daffodils. First prepare the soil well. Choose a plot that will grow good vegetables if you wish to grow fine flowers.

Cabbage Food Value

When you get your cabbage home from the garden or market, take good care to preserve its quality. Wash it, drain off the excess water and store it in a covered container in the refrigerator. Cabbage doesn't keep its food value long in storage. Keep what you buy for only a short time.

Sorting Clothes

Sorting dirty clothes on the floor is hard on the back and may add soil to the clothes, so you may have learned from experience. On next wash day try sorting your clothes on a table or counter at eye-bend height. You'll save wear and tear on yourself and your clothes.

As you sort, brush out pockets, close slide fasteners and remove ornaments that won't stand washing. Then sort according to color, soil and fabric. The day is past when all kinds of fabric can be washed together.

Washer Load

Studies show that clothes wash cleaner if the washing machine is not loaded up to capacity. Some homemakers made a practice of putting a full load to save time, water and detergent. But for cleanliness it's better to put 6 to 7 pounds of clothes in a washer that can take 8 to 10 pounds, for example.

The big disadvantage to overloading is not so much the damage to the motor but is poor laundering.

If I am here Monday, I have a tentative date to go with the pint size supervisor to go out and "explore" the pint-size beat, Beat Three. HOME HINTS

By FRANCES FORTENBERRY
Home Economics Director, Miss. Power & Light Co.

LIGHTING HINTS

If you are buying new shades for your dresser or dressing table lamps, confine your favorite color to the trimmings. White, near white or pastel tints will give true, uncolored light. G-E lighting specialists remind us for make-up, shades should have nine and one-half-inch bottom diameters. Top diameters should be seven inches and the depth of the shade seven inches. Choose shades that are translucent enough to let light flow through to your face.

If you want to take the well-ome off your doormat to night-laying insects, replace bulbs in front door lights with yellow enameled bulbs for the spring and summer months. Whether you use the 60-watt or 100-watt size, insects will be less attracted to yellow than to white light. Try yellow bulbs in other outdoor spots where insects are apt to intrude on outdoor fun.

Shopping for a gift idea for a college student? Choose a rugged hard-glass ruby-red heat lamp in a convenient portable holder. In addition to soothing muscular aches and pains this quick source of infrared heat will serve as a chill-chaser on cold mornings or during late evening study sessions.

Viewing television in a darkened room can cause unnecessary eye-strain and fatigue. Take a tip from lighting experts who point out that the picture of a well-focused set is not decreased in visibility with a moderate amount of lighting throughout the room. Use floor or table lamps on medium and turn to low level only if shades appear brighter than screen. Place lamps so there are no bright reflections in screen and use opaque or dense fabric shades on lamps located near television set. For additional seeing comfort, place a 15 or 25-watt bulb behind the television set.

Lighted valances over windows or on walls is becoming an increasingly popular way to give overall lighting in living rooms, bedroom and dining rooms.

Whether you buy valances ready-made in your favorite store or make them yourself, be sure to hang valances as far as possible against the wall so that light will spread down the front of the drapery.

Hunched up on spine, Editor Whitaker Talks of Bilbo and Mamie's Bangs
Story and picture copyrighted by Times-Picayune 9-10-54 - By Jean T. Selby

'I Don't Know About Journalism, But . . '

IF YOU TOOK a poll to find the most popular man in Grenada, Miss., it wouldn't turn out to be William Whyte Whitaker. But, if you asked around in this town or county, located halfway between Jackson, Miss. and Memphis, Tenn., you'd probably find that there were few people, white and Negro alike, who didn't know "Mr. Whyte" very well indeed.

His is a well-earned reputation as one of the most unorthodox, uninhibited and unpredictable newspaper editors in the business. Half of the joy of reading his Grenada County Weekly is not knowing what he is going to say next. Whitaker sums it up nicely and proves that he isn't fooled one bit about his place in the community.

"Some of the folks like me," he admits cheerfully, "and some don't; but they all know I'm here. I'm like Bilbo. I'd rather be cussed than not noticed. If it gets too quiet around here, I go out and stir up something."

Long-legged, bald, and a bit bowed by the years, Whitaker has his own peculiar way of editing a newspaper, just like he has his own peculiar way of sitting in his favorite swivel chair, which for years has lacked a swivel.

The chair is one of three in the littered, grimy, hodgepodge of an office which contains a desk, two tables, a 1939 model standard typewriter, a more recent portable, two linotypes (one of which is permanently out of commission), a press, a folding machine, several tiers of shelves which are haphazardly used for files, and more than several pounds of assorted cobswebs and dust.

"Mr. Whyte" sits in his chair like an elevated Turk. It is hard to visualize a 65-year-old man taking such a position, but it is his favorite, no matter how odd it seems to others. He sits on his spine, both feet on the seat, with his knees drawn up to his chin.

When he fills his battered pipe, sticks it between his conveniently toothless gums and proceeds to fold himself up according to custom, then Grenada citizens had better watch out, for something is cooking in his agile brain.

It may be something that tickles his slightly ribald sense of humor which prompts him, on occasions, to leave a three-column blank space, running the full length of the page, with two tiny lines of type in the center. When the reader has adjusted his eyes to the unaccustomed smallness of the type, the reader is chagrined to find: "10,000 people will read these lines to see whatthehell."

THE COMINGS and goings of Grenadians make up the heart and soul of the man and his newspaper. For more than 30 years he has been reporting them, saying exactly what he saw and thought and letting the chips fall where they may. Only once has any man tried to stop his busy typewriter. Then, Whyte says, "the darn fool had to get drunk to get up enough courage to try."

The reason is simple. Whyte Whitaker is a very truthful man, for all of his homespun humor, and when he says he saw Joe Doaks sell some whiskey in defiance of the dry laws of Mississippi, you can get your bottom dollar that Joe did just that. It tickles everybody but Joe, so the best thing for him to do is just to be more careful to see that Whyte Whitaker is not around when Joe hands over a pint the next time.

Once "Mr. Whyte" quite calmly said, "Some of the 'saloonkeepers' did not seem to like what I said last week. Boys, I just want folks to call you 'saloonkeepers' and quit calling you 'bootleggers.'"

"I probably would still be a Rotarian," he remarked one week, "if they did not talk an hour whether they had anything to say or not."

He doesn't spare himself in his spicy observations. "Always loyal to the faded glory of the Confederacy," he wrote, "the GCW (Grenada County Weekly) charges widows of Confederate veterans only a dollar a year. It ain't our fault that we have only one who qualifies."

In an editorial he stated baldly, jerk and hooked him.

"After I hooked him I did not know what to do with him, and that reminds me how often folks think they want something, then get it, and don't know what to do with it when they get it. Dogs run after cars and I have often speculated about what a dog would with a car if he caught it."

"A man often thinks he cannot get along without some particular woman, gets her, and then don't know what to do with her. Sometimes another man runs off with her and saves the man from embarrassment, just like the snake did when he sidled up to a tree and pushed off my hook."

THERE IS NOTHING TO BUY!
DIAMOND RING ANY MANY OTHER NICE DOOR PRIZES

In October, 1891 F. R. Lickfold, my Father, founded this business. He was active in the business until recent years and dreamed of a new store, new fixtures, new merchandise. He never lived to see this realized. When Jay Gore came to me early this year and told me he was going to build a new building on this lot and had plans for a new store for us, then I realized that my Fathers dreams were coming true. We have tried to carry out the things he suggested to me during our association in business. The wall cases are just the way he had wanted them refinished and the old clock, that has been on the wall since I can remember, is right in place in the new store. This is our formal opening and our way of Celebrating our 63rd birthday. We want every one within 50 miles to come to the party. Be our Guest. I'll be looking for you.

"JEWELERS SINCE 1891"

Town Talk
BY FED ROBINSON

Our Sundays are a kind of oasis in our journey through life. God, in His wisdom knew we would need a rest period about every seven days, and all these centuries we have geared our activities around a unit of seven days. Six days we work and the seventh we rest, and the plan has proven the wisdom behind it. Our health depends upon that day of rest, our nerves would never stand - even as well as we are now able to stand it - should we continue under the strain of tension for say, 21 days, before a day of rest. Let's think about Sunday as an oasis in the desert of life. A desert traveler can hardly pack enough water and provisions to last for the crossing of a desert, so he must depend upon replenishment at the oases. So it was with a great hoard of people probably 600,000 who were making a long journey from Egypt to some uncharted land. . . . And they came to a desert where there were twelve springs of water, and three score and ten palm trees: and they encamped there by the waters". Exodus 15:27. Look at them. Sweating under the hot sun, dirt caked on their faces, tired and weary from the long march, throats dry and parched, clothing dirty and uncomfortable. But here is an oasis of twelve springs and seventy palm trees for shade. What a physical relief in cleansing and refreshing, and what a spiritual relief to see that the Heavenly Father was providing for them still. Well, that's a picture of our own Sundays. May we be thankful for them and keep them holy.

A small boy, new to the Sunday School was greatly pleased with his picture card and its text. "Have Faith in God". But on the way home the little card slipped from his fingers and fluttered out the window of the streetcar. "I have lost my 'Faith in God' . . . stop the car" and the conductor stopped the car and the card was recovered while the passengers were very quiet until someone remarked: "Well, perhaps many of us can get a lesson from what we have just heard . . . we too have lost our 'Faith in God' since we went to Sunday School as children." And . . . little children shall lead them.

Noises In The Night

In the big cities there are many noises that irritate people trying to sleep. I remember when I lived at Third and Adams Streets in Memphis the street cars thumped across that intersection every 5 minutes until 1:30

A. M. and I could sleep like a log until the cars stopped running and then would awaken. Well, that's for younger people for now the least little unfamiliar noises around our place awakens me. However there are times when noises in the night are appreciated and enjoyed. I can remember those long nights when our Sonny was seriously ill and as long as there were noises in the neighborhood we wouldn't feel quite so alone, but after everyone had turned off the lights and the awful quietness settled down over us we felt so far away and alone with our grief. I'm sure it's the same way with those people who are ill - and there are many of them - they actually enjoy hearing slamming car doors, calls of good-night as visitors leave the neighborhood and before that the voices of children as they play in the streets, is welcomed through the windows of the sick room. Across our street is a little boy who has lain in bed 18 months with the same illness our Sonny had, and his cocker spaniel shouts his little yelps in the wee hours as the dim little light shines from the boy's window and ordinarily a barking dog might irritate some people, but not so with us because we know from experience that its the big quiet, the perfect stillness of a long night that cloaks your heart with complete loneliness. So, before you allow yourself to be upset about a few noises in the night just remember please, there could come a time when the voices of people or their foot falls on your street, their happy greetings and their barking dogs would seem to you a kind of assurance there are other people near by who stand ready to come in to help should a tragedy come to your home.

Henry James Farm Headquarters

This picture appeared in the GCW about four weeks ago and nobody called for the original photograph that we offered to give. As a matter of fact, Henry James of Beat Two did come in to get the picture, but must have found the GCW force "out."

Henry and Mrs. James came in last Friday and got the original. This farm, comprising 223 acres, is the former Ed James property, but originally belonged to the Conley family. The Henry James family bought it about 35 years ago, soon after Henry James and Miss Leola Rosamond married.

The family now consists of four children, two sons and two daughters. Henry James, Jr. lives and works in Memphis; Jimmie James lives and works at home on the farm was once the Conley old barn, put up with hand hewed logs and pegs together with handmade wooden pegs and was used as a home for the then occupants of the property. Miss Naomi James lives in Eupora while Miss Helen James, a teacher, teaches music at Edwards and Bolton, Hines County, Miss.

Henry James practices general farming, both row crops and live-stock, and uses tractors and a pair of mules. He has a bunch of Black Angus cattle and also a lot of Poland China hogs. It takes a lot of work to prepare to keep cattle and hogs, and Henry has done that. The writer, who used to be familiar with the county out east well remembers where Ed James lives, but, with the changing of No. 8 and the adding of blacktopped farm-to-market roads, he might get lost looking for Henry.

It is interesting to note the large works in Memphis; Jimmie James barn in the picture. That structure bout five years ago.

"Farm of the Week" - Last Week

—This Series Sponsored by Jitney-Jungle, Grenada.

The farm headquarters shown above, and shown on the front page last week, is that of Homer Trussell. The property consists of about 260 acres and, way back, was owned by the Peeples family.

Mr. Trussell, who came by the office Saturday and claimed the original photograph, says he don't do much work himself, even if he served 29 years as one of the drivers of the nearby Gore Springs school.

His wife is the former Miss Deil Clanton. They were married about 25 years ago and have one boy only, Homer Dale Trussell, who still lives at the comfortable family home, and has crops of his own on the Trussell land.

Homer don't claim to be a fancy farmer or anything like that, but has supplemented motive power of mules partially with a tractor.

He has a herd of native cattle and partially goes in for conservation practices.

He has an allotment of 16 acres of cotton, also has .7 acres on some rented land.

He has one colored tenant and, together, they plant, cultivate and harvest these acreage of crops.

Out in Beat Two, where the property is located, there is a lot of Trussells and in-laws of the family. They have been in that section a long time.

—LIBRARY NEWS—

Grenada County Library has again been instrumental in obtaining the loan of Library books for the colored schools. This year the Mississippi Library Commission allowed us 475 books in the value of approximately $90.00. They are mostly for small children, to supplement school work, and are new, fresh and beautiful.

The City School is using 200 of these books and the rest is being turned over to Lola Moore, Jeans supervisor for this county. These books are checked and delivered with lists by this library and the return postage guaranteed by it. We find that the colored children and teachers take good care of the books and return them with the minimum wear. If any are lost or abused, they pay for them. We are glad to be of service to the children and schools.

The librarian visited Bogue Creek Home Demonstration Club last Tuesday. She was the guest of Mrs. Ed McCormick and enjoyed meeting with the club members very much. While there she reviewed the book "The Gentle House" by Anna Perrot Rose.

The library cooperates with the extension department in encouraging the Home Demonstration membership in their reading. A list of suggested books is posted in the library and reading certificates are offered by the head office. It is hoped that many of the clubs throughout the county will be winners this year. The librarian hopes to be able to visit most of the clubs this fall. She will be the guest of the Riverdale and Perry Creek clubs in October.

Unmolding Congealed Salads

To unmold a congealed salad, loosen the edge of mold with a spatula or small knife that has been dipped in warm water. Then quickly dip the mold just to the top in luke warm water. Hot water will melt the mold. Shake the mold to loosen the gelatin. Place a serving dish on top of mold, turn the mold over and lift it off carefully.

For large molds, moisten the surface of the gelatin and the serving plate and unmold. When the two surfaces are wet, it's easy to center the mold. Remove excess moisture with a towel.

Surround large molds with salad greens after unmolding; they may break if unmolded on crisp greens.

Individual molds may be turned out directly on greens.
